4D Sodium Hyaluronate contains four different types of hyaluronic acid

1. Sodium Hyaluronate Cross Polymer
2. Medium Molecular Sodium Hyaluronate
3. Sodium Acetylated Hyaluronate
4. Hydrolyzed Sodium Hyaluronate.

When applied to the skin, different types of hyaluronic acid can accurately locate the surface of the skin, the stratum corneum, the epidermis and the dermis and instantly exert three-dimensional moisturizing effect. The inner layer replenishes water, the outer layer locks water, presenting a multi-level tender skin.

Sodium hyaluronate crosslinked polymer

Dense invisible protective film, long-lasting moisture.

Middle molecule sodium hyaluronate

Breathable hydration membrane to prevent water loss from inside the skin. The surface locks in water and replenishes water to soften the cuticle

Stratum corneum

Sodium Acetylated Hyaluronate

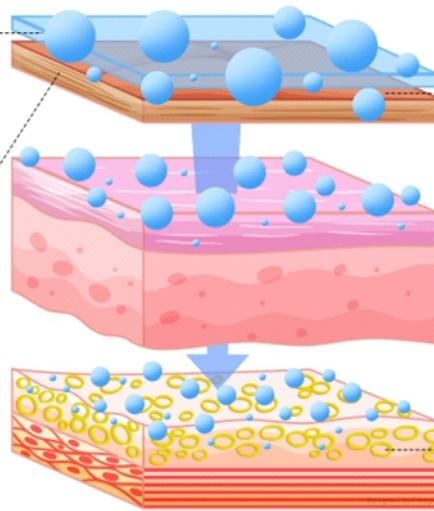

Double moisturizing, repair cuticle barrier, effective skin softening

Epidermis

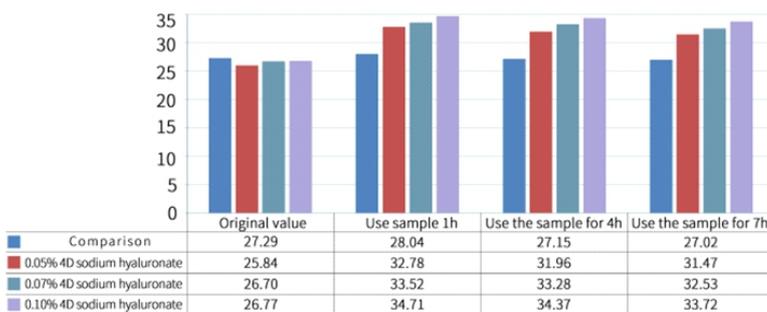

Hydrolyzed sodium hyaluronate

Fast penetration into the skin, deep water lock, muscle bottom maintenance

Dermis

EFFICACY TEST:

Immediate and continuous moisture retention of the sample is proportional to the amount of sodium quadruple* hyaluronate added (within a certain range).

EFFICACY:

- Forms dense invisible protective film
- Double moisturizing
- Repair cuticle barrier
